MIDDLEBURG, CASEYICOUNTY.

-A shower of rain sufficient to stop the forest fires, fell here Friday morning. -Mr. and Mrs. Harry Van gave an en. tertainment here Wednesday night, but we have not found anyone willing to acknowledge that he was present. -Our old friend J. H. McWhorter, since moving from his wilderness home in Lincoln county, has become an expert in the treatment of the diseases of cattle. Some weeksago, Spears Fisher was grieving over the prospects of losing his $75 Jersey cow, when John Hansford as he is more familiarly known, happened along, and took the case in charge and soon had the cow on her pegs. Spears was so delighted, that he went about publishing the wonderful cure, and now Mr. Mc Whorter is sent for, far and near, by those having sick cattle, and is talking of going into the business for a livelihood.

-It is only one week to the election and democrats should allow no grass to grow under their feet for the next few days. Everything is in good shape and this is going to be a democratic year in Casey if we continue to work. Cesey should do herself proud by giving George Stone a handsome majority. He has more sense than Adams and Colson com. bined, besides he has never sought office at the hands of the people, while Adams has been in office almost ever, since he had an existence in the world, and if he ever did anything to commend himself to the people, his most intimate friends can not recall it. He should be given a rest, while a meritorious young man fills his place.

-Rev. G. C. Smith has announced himself a candidate for justice of peace in this precinct, subject to the will of the people expressed at the polls on Nov. 6th. He become offended at the ruling of Squire J. A. Wall in a suit in! which he (Smith) was defendant, and has sought this plan to get even with the Squire by dividing the democratic vote to allow Staton, the republican candidate to defeat Wall. Bro. Smith is e Baptist, and so are we, and therefore we feel at liberty to advise with him a little. If he will stick to the business for which he has spent much time and possibly means to prepare himself, parts of our county now destitute, of the gospel, will probably be enlightened on the subject of the Bible.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINEES

For County Judge ..... JAS . WALKER GIVENS G. B. COOPER Attorney. T. D. NEWLAND E. D. KENNEDY ...G. W. DEBORD Jailer ....

In some of the counties Prohibitionist Demaree failed to comply with the law with reference to getting his name on the ballots and of course it might have been lett off. In Madison the clerk had decided that he could not put it on, and the republicans thereupon began to make capital out of the so-called democratic trick. The democratic committee, to show that there was no desire to treat the prohibitionists unfairly, petitioned the clerk of Madison to put Demaree's name on the ballots and he agreed to do so, provided the candidates were willing. Gov. McCreary promptly agreed but at last accounts Dr. Roberts was as silent on the subject as he has been on the issues of this campaign. We trust our prohibition friends will make a note of this and not permit themselves to be bamboozled by the false pretenses and the foxy game the republicans would play on them.

Goy, McCreary is one of the most efficient men in Congress. His record of public service is surpassed by no member of the Kentucky delegation and his near Ironwood, Mich. standing in Washington is without reproach. He is a capable man, a useful man and a conservative man. His constituents, be he democrat, republican or prohibitionist, white or black, have never called on him in vain. He is always ready to serve them and the high $100,000. estimate in which he is held by law makers and law enforcers makes him peculiarly effective in doing so. Can this district afford to retire such a man for one of Dr. Roberts calibre and inexperience? We think not and we confidently believe it will not. THE Courier Journal of yesterday contained reports from all the Congressional a mob. districts in Kentucky, which show that things are in pretty good shape and that there is nothing to justify the big boasts of the republicans. They are making their fight in the 3d, 5th, 7th and 9th districts, but with little prospect of suc cess anywhere, even in the 11th, if Colson stays on the track, which he is likely to do dispite the efforts of the republican campaign committee.

BRER DEMAREE has sold his Madison county farm and will move to Louisville to engage more extensively in prohibition work, "ef his party should fail to send him to Congress." In this case that "F", is not a long crooked letter. The probibitionists would not send Brer Demaree to Congress if they could. They have more respect for themselves than that, though they will vote for him, when they know he hasn't the ghost of a show.

As will be seen by a card in another column of this issue, Col. Silas Adams is in the race for Congress to stay till the last day in the evening. There is no earthly chance for an agreement between him and Colson, and the war is on to the end. It is an ill wind that blows nobody good. George Stone and democracy seem in the fairest way to get the benefit.

SHEEP BARN.

The Illustration Shows Its Front Elevation and Ground Plan.

The accompanying plan of a sheep barn is one which has been found very useful in the northwest for a flock of about 500 ewes when crowded to its fullest capacity, though more conveniently accommodating 250 to 350 during the lambing season, for which it was especially designed, and with slight modification made to answer for a shearing barn and storing loft later in the ground (Fig. 1) and posts 16 feet high formed the center, from which in three directions went out one story wings, two of them 50 by 26 feet and one 65 by 20 feet, making an aggregate floor space of about 4,400 feet. The center was substantially built, as the second ter and spring and for the wool clip between shearing and shipping. Oak posts 8 inches square were set upon flat stones, imbedded so as to bring the upper surface 2 inches above ground. Lower laid with dressed and matched flooring, so as to allow no hayseed or other trash to sift through and to be the more easily cleaned for the reception of wool. Sin-

Roof to wings made of stock boards 16 feet long, laid 2 inches apart and battened with fencing the but not stripped. A row of posts down the center of each wing supported the roof and served to strengthen partitions below. A fair idea of the divisions and these grand bargains. Entire building floored with clay, well packed down. The center was used for various purposes, though its principal value was as a catching pen. Sheep were driven in from the yard in front, and after sorting turned into two or more of the apartments or through them parties were disposed of at the Richmond, tages are noted in handling sheep in a pen thus under cover. It can be done in wet or cold weather as well as at other times. Sheep are much quieter, seeming to realize that there is no chance for cattle at 3 to 31 cents. He bought 110 escape. Very little jumping or struging was crowded, this center room was relieve the other apartments. Every morning and at intervals during the day ewes that had dropped lambs were carefully removed from the larger apartments (B) and placed in the small pens (C), not more than five or six being allowed together until the lambs were a day or more old. When these small pens were full, the sheep from two of them were driven together into one of the larger pens (D). By the time these latter were full the main flock had been reduced, so as to allow the occupancy of one of the larger apartments by the animals from three or four of the pens (D). The lambs in this apartment were then old enough to be allowed to run outside when the weather was pleasant, only being housed at night. The gates to the smaller pens were made so as to completely close the alley into which they swung, so that the sheep could go nowhere else than into the pen where it was wanted. In all the pens occupied with ewes with lambs too young to be turned outside tubs of water were kept standing and the racks always full of hav.

In the second story of the center building a room 10 feet square was partitioned off and supplied with a stove and lounge for the use of the shepherd,

At shearing time the entire building was cleaned out. A shearing floor made of matched flooring in sections 4 feet wide, held together by battens on the under side, much after the fashion of an ordinary barn door, was laid in the center room and the fleeces as fast as tied thrown through an opening into the second story, where they were properly ricked up to await the advent of the buyer or the time for sacking. The two small pens next to this room were used for holding sheep to be sheared, which as fast as finished were turned through one of the wings into the yards outside. - Montreal Herald.

The battle is on hot between advocates of the Clydesdale and Percheron horses. Why does not some breeder make a special cross between the two and keep it up for about four equine generations and see what the result will be? It is said we are to have a special American carriage horse. Why not an American draft horse too?

-Jack Warner Williams, son of A. B. Williams, of near this place, left his News. home over five years ago to try his fortunes in the far Southwest. He was in the early bloom of manhood and was of bright promise. He first located about Fort Worth, Texas, but afterwards went to the Indian Territory. But consumption, the fell destroyer, seized upon his vitals, and in August last he was brought back to his home emaciated and feeble. He lingered until the night of the 24th, when he passed away. The remains were brought to the Christian church at this place on the 26th at 10 A. M., where a beautiful funeral oration was delivered by Elder J. Q. Montgomery, after which his remains were followed to the grave by a large number of friends and relatives. The community deeply sympathizes with his bereaved relatives.
